Economic growth and the rise in world population put pressure on food demands and agricultural products; feeding this population will require substantial changes to ensure the production, distribution and consumption of sufficient nutritious products, environmental sustainability and economic opportunities through agriculture. By 2050 the world population will reach 9.1 billion - how can we feed everyone?

Side Event 2

Energy Efficiency, Renewable Energy and Investment Projects

Friday 4 December 2015 @ 11:30 - 13:00

Climate Generation Areas (Le Bourget), Salle 9

This event is free and open to the public. Registration with the UNFCCC secretariat is not needed.

Climate change, pollution and energy insecurity are significant problems and addressing them requires major changes to energy infrastructures. Renewable energy technologies are essential contributors to the energy supply portfolio, as they contribute to world energy security, reduce dependency on fossil fuels, and provide opportunities for mitigating greenhouse gases. Climate-disrupting fossil fuels are being replaced by clean, climate-stabilizing and renewable sources of energy.

Part 1 (11:00 - 12:30): Green Metropolitan Solutions and Urban Infrastructure

As cities continue to attract the majority of the world's population, they need to incorporate and implement significant strategies to manage increasing density, demand for resources, and climate change. During this side event, world-leading sustainable thinkers will contribute their experiences, thoughts and actions to the discourse on our sustainable future. This event uses examples from around the world to demonstrate how various businesses have benefited from improvements within cities.

Part 2 (12:30 - 14:00): Green Transport and Innovation in Urban Mobility Changing how we travel and embracing new technologies is key to making our cities cleaner, greener and happier. While cities recognise and espouse the benefits of building low carbon, resilient economies, they need to use every opportunity to progress further. The first step is to strengthen and expand existing public transportation networks so that they are more convenient and more accessible. Secondly, we need to invest in sustainable transportation technology to create fuel efficient and low-emissions vehicles. Finally, we need to design biking- and walking-friendly cities. With these investments, we can transition to a cleaner, safer, and more affordable transportation infrastructure.
